RBI decision may limit gold loan growth, says Crisil

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA Mumbai, October 22

THE RESERVE BANK of India's recent notification asking financiers to review their gold loan practices can slow down the loan growth in the nearterm and lead to an uptick in asset quality stress, a domestic rating agency said on Tuesday. "Potentially, this could impact gold loan disbursements during the transition phase and curb growth in the business," the note by Crisil said. However, it was quick to add that in the gold loan business, credit cost is the more appropriate indicator of the asset quality and overall credit losses are seen under control because of Indians' emotional attachment to gold. Ability of lenders to maintain conservative loan-to-value as well as to conduct timely auctions and recover dues also support low ultimate credit losses, it added.

The agency's director, Malvika Bhotika, said the RBI regulations aim to ensure consistent application of guidelines in the gold-loan space and protect borrower interest.
